SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER. SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Bad Breath, Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is feit under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, i, dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and fushed face is sometimes an attendant, often instaken for consumption; the patient complains of wearness and debility; nervous, exily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy, several of the above symptoms attend the discoss, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

IT SHOULD BE USED BY ALL PERSONS, OLD AND YOUNG, WHENEVER ANY OF THE ABOVE SYMPTOMS APPEAR.

THE CHOSEN MAN.

The Board of Aldermen some weeks ago adopted a resolution looking to the purchase of the Haynes property, in Henrico county, for a pauper burying-ground and other purposes. When the proposition reached the Common Council it failed to get the necessary two-thirds vote, and a resolution was adopted in lieu thereof, and afterwards concurred in by the Board of Aldermen, appointing a committee to confer with the authorities of Henrico county in relation to the subject. The committee has been appointed, as follows: John A. Officer William Marion Colgin was se lected for this service, because he had ar-rested Bouldin at Christmas, and it was hoped that he would recognize him again, and for the further reasons that he was born and raised in New Kent county and is well acquainted below Richmond, and furthermore is known to be possessed of those two great requisites in the detection of criminals-perseverance and courage. On his way to Richmond the prisoner acknowledged that he was Bouldin, but pression rather indicative of good nature than otherwise. A reporter asked him up and down yesterday, "What do you think of the verdict of the jury?" Amiss answered, "With the evidence before them, I suppose they did as well as they could."

He said six pounds to the pot; twelve pounds to the charge. Wacker said: "Well, damn it; I'm boss here. I want to double the quantity." Bouldin went up the steps to the pots and filled them, and Wacker came up and said, "What is all this stuff doing in METHODIST CHURCH.—The pastor of this these pots?"

Bouldin declared that if he had wanted any trouble with Wacker be could have had it then, but he was no more mad, said he, "than I am now."

He came down stairs and John Powers.

He came down stairs and John Powers (the white youth) said: "George, the boss has discharged you; hasn't he?" He re-plied yes, and John said, "Well, you don't care; you can get another job, can't you?"
Prisoner further remarked that he was "going to tell Mr. Crenshaw about this, as he (Mr. Crenshaw) didn't allow anybody

THE FLIGHT-HIS ACCOUNT. Bouldin further declared that he went cal e direct to his room, on Lester street near to Gi Parr's pottery, and got to bed, and had nate.

Bouldin in his flight displayed at least one very ingenious dodge to get the sympathy and aid of the people along the road.

It seems that in some way he leave to the sympathy and in the people along the road. It seems that in some way he learned that a negro man was about three miles ahead of him travelling down the road. That negroes living on the roadside that the man moving on ahead had stolen the boots and saddle from hun, and he was trying to catch the wretch. As they had seen the party with these articles in his possession they readily believed his story, and besides listening with interest gave him advice and food. Bouldin never did catch the man ahead of him, but was always after him.

A Partial Confession.

Notwithstanding all his declarations of nocence made on his way to this city, and for two or three hours after his arrival, Bouldin yesterday evening, between 5 and 6 o'clock, made 3 free admission that by his act Wacker received his death-wound.

AN ADMISSION. Ther he went all over the same old story.
Mr. Crenshaw stated the fact that Mr.
Lane and wife had heard the words "Fil cut you or stab you," and asked Bouldin where did you last see Wacker; whereupon Bouldin told him that Wacker came out of the office-door and made at him. He ran. Wacker gained on him rapidly. Prisoner said he ran down towards the track, and when Wacker was about to clutch him he stooped down and picked up a rock. Wacker had a knife in his left hand. [He was cut in the left side.]

Prisoner backed from him, telling Wackyou in the head with this rock." Wacker losed upon him, and prisoner seized didn't know. He then let go Wacker's hand and ran off down the road (Williamsburg avenue). This statement was originally made to Mr. Crenshaw and reiterated in the presence of Sergeant Howard. What is here given is from Sergeant Howard's recollection.

PERSONAL.

Bouldin is twenty-three years of age He is of a very dark ginger-bread color-almost black. He has quite a pleasant face, and a cocoanut-shaped head. He has some pimple-marks about the forchead, and his moustache is in the formative stubble stage. He is about six feet in height, squarely built, and very muscular; carries himself erect, and moves quickly. His weight, he says, is 176 pounds.

Says, is 176 pounds.

He spells and writes his name B-o-u-l-i-n, but Mr. Alpheus Bolling, of Burkeville, who was in the city yesterday, stated that he belonged when a slave to the Bouldin family, from which he doubtless derives his name.

Dennis Rowe, the colored brakeman, who Robert Bouldin claims as his uncle, says that Bouldon is right; but there is no telling. His name has changed once a day since he was first charged with this crime, and it may be necessary to call an orthographical inquest to determine how it should be properly spelt. Rowe, however, denies that he is the uncle of Robert and George. He says that "these low down niggers are all the fime claiming kin with respectable folks," and that, for one, with his prisoner yesterday morns with his prisoner yesterday morns.

NATAL DAY.

The Twenty-Second of February.

The First General Observance of the Day by the Military since 1860-Street Parade and Review by the Governor.

The anniversary of the birthday of Washington opened with a cheerless morn as could be. The atmosphere was icy-cold, almost, and a leaden sky hid the sun, and it was hard to say which was most immi-nent, a rain- or a snow-storm. Once-or twice about midday scattering rain-drops fell and spread themselves out in wide spots on the sidewalks.

It was an anxious matter with the military, who were much interested in pre-parations for a public parade, the pomp and pageantry of which would have been materially interfered with had there been falling weather. As the day wore on, however, the indications changed, and it was evident that the soldiers would not be interfered with by storms of any sort. Away toward the west rifts in the dark clouds let out streaks of light, and disclosed the welcome sight of patches of blue sky—large enough in many cases to make the largest Dutchman a pair of pants. THE BLUES.

By 4 o'clock in the afternoon a large crowd had collected in the vicinity of the armory of the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, on Seventh street, in front of which Voelker's band, in full uniform, was standing. The small boy was out in strong force, but he was not alone, as hundreds of grown-up boys were also on hand. Promptly on time the Blues, fifty-six strong, rank and file, moved out from the party had a pair of boots and a saddle party had a pair of boots and a saddle porch of which stood Governor Cameron, slung over his shoulder. Bouldin told the porch of which stood Governor Cameron, who, with uncovered head, reviewed the stood are near the Governor the G company. Standing near the Governor was his estimable lady, Miss Freeman, and other members of his family.

THE FIRST REGIMENT. The First regiment, under command of Colonel Charles J. Anderson, formed at their Armory and marched down Broad street to Tenth, where they were joined by the Blues and their band of music. The field and staff were well mounted, and showed a spirit and dash that has been much lacking on former occasions. The regiment was headed by Voelker's band and the Blues, under command of Captain Pizzini. The following companies turned out: Company A (Richmond Grays), Lieutenant Phillips commanding, 30 men; Company D (Old Dominion Guard), Captair Brown, 35 men; Company E (Governor's Guard). Captain Parater, 30 men; Company F, 24 men; Company C, Captain Davis, 28 men; and Company B (Walker Light Guard), Captain Jones.

Dress-parade in the Square followed the march, the companies reaching the Square through the Governor's grounds and sathrough the Governor's grounds and saluting him as they passed the mansion.

A large crowd in the Square witnessed the dress-parade, and a marked improvement in the appearance and drill of the regiment was the verdict of all.

After the parade in the Capitol Square the command returned to their armories the First regiment being dismissed, and the Blues remaining to enjoy a lunch. One table held the punch-bowls, over which the soldiers slaked their thirst, and another presented a solid array of tempting edi-bles. Voclker's band made merry music while the Blues and their guests made the punch and edibles disappear in a hurry.

OTHER OBSERVANCES. The Richmond Light Infanty (colored), Captain Tinsley, also paraded, presenting a full turn-out, and headed by a brass

The observance of the day was more Prisoner backed from him, telling Wack-er that "if you don't go way I'll knock general than it has been since 1860, and the er that "if you don't go way I'll knock general than it has been since 1860, and the display of bunting was better, United States flags being thrown to the breeze on Wacker's left hand and shoved it back under his arm like, from which motion Bouldin thinks Wacker cut himself, but he tol, banks, and public buildings were all closed. On one of the Capitol flag-staffs the flag of the State of Virginia floated, and on the other the United States flag.

More interest was shown in the observ-ance of the day than has been seen for years, and it is fair to presume that the old custom connected with the day will be re

VERDICT AGAINST THE VIRGINIA HOME-IN-SURANCE COMPANY .- A letter from Abbe ville, S. C., dated February 19th, states that an important case which excited great interest there had just been decided by the Circuit Court. This was the suit of Mrs. Nuclia Murray against the Virginia Home-Insurance Company, which was brought to recover the amount of a policy of in-surance on the dwelling-house of Mrs. Murray, which was destroyed by fire in

The case excited great interest. The evidence was strong, and the arguments of counsel on both sides unusually able and eloquent. Colonel E. B. Gary appeared for the plaintiff, and Messrs. Benet & Smith for the defendant. The question in the case was simply one of fact—Did the plaintiff have a hand in the burning? The jury were charged with the case at about 3:30 o'clock on Saturday. Not having agreed at 6 o'clock they were instructed to bring in a sealed verdict. This was done. Yesterday morning the verdict was published, being for the plaintiff for $2,200.

Company's quarry, mentioned as taking place to-day, has been postponed until March the 9th, when the sale will be conducted by Messrs. Sampson & Adamson.

JOHN McCullough.-This gentleman who appears at the Richmond Theatre for three nights and matinee, commencing Thursday, March 1st, enjoys a brilliant season this year. In Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and throughout the West his engagements were the largest. At Pittsburgh and Brooklyn the orchestra was nightly removed to give additional seatingcapacity. Two weeks in Philadelphia ges every one.

The distribution of plays is as follows: Thursday, "Virginius," with his London costumes and armors; Friday, "Othello"; matinée Saturday, "Ingomar"; Saturday night, "The Gladiator." Sale of seats begins on Monday morning.

Now that Bouldin is in eustody, Now that Bouldin is in custody, let us think about taking a new census; and when it is resolved upon it will be well for the police to ask the assistance of leaders of the colored people. Ordinarily the colored people do not give information readily, but if men whom they trust will tell them what the census is, and that it bodes no harm, they may be induced to be more communicative. communicative.

The child of a colored woman residing at 610 Seventeenth street, in the absence of the woman, who was out doing day's work, was so severely burned on Wednesday that she died yesterday. She was six years old. The City School Board had a long session yesterday evening, and was mainly en-gaged hearing the case of D. B. Williams, a gaged nearing the case of D. B. Williams, a colored teacher at the Navy-Hill school, who was charged with insubordination to the principal. He was discharged, but with the right reserved to him to apply for estoration to his position.

It is now positively stated that Bishop John C. Granbery, of the Methodist Church, will preach in this city the ensuing Sab-bath. He has not before held service here since his elevation. Several marriages of well-known and popular young citizens will occur at an early date. The income from licenses derived by the clerk of the City Court is ra-ther distinguished, as a general thing, for continuity rather than ponderosity.

Among the soldiers of the First Virginia regiment who paraded yesterday in honor of Washington's birthday were a number of citizens of this place, who are accounted. and justly, worthy members and accom-plished soldiers. The question of a fence-law is being earnestly discussed by the voters of the Murray, which was destroyed by are in December, 1881. The company refused to Bermuda Hundred precinet, in Chester-pay the policy, alleging fraud in the burning.

The country round about that revived port of trade has of late greatly increased in population and re-sources, and the fence-law becomes a question of importance in consequence. FOR SALE, A GRANITE-QUARRY In the city of Manchester, at the Junction of the Belle Isle, the Richmond and Danville, and the Connection railroads with the Richmond, Fredsricksbyrg and Potomac and Richmond and Petersburg railroads. Its advantages are the superfority of the granite, its location on the line of so many railroads, its nearness to the cities of Manchester and Richmond and to shipping, and the case and cheapness with which the granite may be worked and the top earth and rubble may be removed, the railroads requiring all such supplies. For tilling and embankments in the immediate vicinity of the quarry. The granite-quarry is so near each city that the granite may be conveniently carted without being taxed by railroad charges and transfers.
